135. Breckley.—The Clerk has seen the Chaplain to obtain from him the average daily time engaged during the several months, and he states that he kept no diary of the time, but he believes that three-quarters of an hour for each visit, including the Sunday service, would be the approximate time engaged.

* 280. Tarleton.—No Chaplain. Religious instruction and ministrations are afforded gratuitously by ministers of various denominations at Tarleton.

† 281. Okehampton.—No Chaplain appointed for this union workhouse. All the inmates that are able attend Divine worship on Sundays at the parish church, accompanied by the officers, and sit together in the church in a place appropriated for them.

‡ 282. Creddon.—There is no paid Chaplain for the workhouse of this union. The vicar of Creddon, with the sanction of the board, performs Divine service in the house, and visits some of the sick inmates once a week, or oftener if sent for. The Rev. H. Tinkell, of Creddon, rector of Hildesleigh, and an elected guardian of the union, inspects, with the permission of the board, the workhouse school, and examines the children, and outtakes them, &c., as required by Article 321 of the General Consolidated Order.

Order. The Rev. W. A. Brown, a Congregational minister of Crediton, also performs, under the sanction of the board, Divine service at the workhouse once every Sunday, except as is hereinafter mentioned, and visits regularly each of the sick inmates, as well as to see him. In Mr. Brown's absence, and at other times, some of the other Dissenting ministers of the neighbourhood are allowed to attend and conduct Divine service for him, also to visit the sick inmates occasionally. The services and attendance at the house by the different ministers, &c., are arranged, as far as possible, so as not to clash or interfere one with another.

§ 283. Timeton.—There is no paid Chaplain in the workhouse. Two of the rectors of the parish of Timeton read-rope the service of Holy Communion. One has the charge of the weekly services, and also reads a Scripture reader to the sick and infirm; and the other takes charge of the Sunday chapel service, and of the Scripture lessons in the workhouse school. No salaries are paid or rates expended on religious instruction.

2003. Written.—The Chaplain states that "About the hours of my attendance weekly at the union workhouse, I thought the time allotted to in the prisoner's room sent to you was only for the time I give weekly to the sick prisoners, and did not have it allotted to my other duties, including Sundays and Wednesdays. My weekly hours of duty are as follows:—Sundays, one hour, including Good Friday and Christmas Day; Wednesdays, with visiting sick men, one hour and a-half; Fridays, visiting sick women, half an hour; that is three hours every week. Once a month I visit the schools: boys, one hour; girls, three quarters of an hour; so that I believe as the union work three hours weekly, and one hour and three quarters on the schools monthly, as my son, I believe, only sent up one hour weekly as to extent of my visits."

 469. Oldham.—No specific sum is expended in providing religious ministrations. Religious services are conducted every Sunday afternoon in the Workhouse Chapel by Ministers resident in Colham, according to a plan arranged amongst themselves. There is one recognised Chaplain, but the Rev. Richard Meredith Davies, Congregational Minister, has the practical oversight of the arrangements.

†† 470. Rochdale.—All religious services and ministrations are given voluntarily and regularly by arrangement.

480. Luneville.—* Rev. T. M. Remington.

† Miss R. Remington.

‡ 482. Sedburgh.—These visits have not been recorded. The Vicar of Sedburgh (as Chaplain) or his curate attends every Friday at the workhouse at 4 p.m., and conducts a service lasting an hour on the average. He visits also the sick at irregular intervals, but these attendances are not included in this Return. Ministers of other denominations are permitted to attend the workhouse, but their visits are rare.

* 321. Petrington.—The regular attendance of the Chaplain is twice a week, namely, on Sunday, the full service takes about an hour; and on Thursday sometimes the service, and at other times a Scripture Lesson is given, which generally occupies about 45 minutes; but owing to the illness of the late Chaplain, and the difficulty he found in providing a substitute, the full attendance was not always made during the year 1866.

† 322. Stileigh.—With regard to the number of all other denominations, the clerk states they "attend the Church of England service in the workhouse, and have never expressed any desire to attend the services of their own denominations."

‡ 323. Driffield.—The clerk states there to be of "no religion."

§ 324. Bridlington.—There is no paid Chaplain, but the services to the Church of England parsons are performed by the Scripture Reader, and to the members of other denominations by a lay member of the Wesleyan Methodist Society.

* 340, Berlington.—No Chaplain appointed.

† 341 & Sedgefield.—No Chaplain appointed. The rector of the parish of Sedgefield, or his curate, attended the workhouse to afford religious instruction to such of the inmates as belong to the Church of England, but refused to allow. The Roman Catholic clergy are at liberty to attend the workhouse for the like purpose, on such of the inmates as are of the Roman Catholic persuasion.

* 551. South Shields.—The guardians have not considered it necessary to appoint a Workhouse Chaplain, the requirements of the inmates being efficiently attended to by the ministers resident in the district.

† 552. Gateshead.—No paid Chaplain. The Church of England inmates have visits every Thursday and service for one hour.

‡ The Roman Catholic inmates have service every Wednesday. Visits for sick when required.

§ Inmates of all other denominations have service every Sunday, afternoon and evening. Visits for sick when required.

‖ 553. Newcastle-on-Tyne.—With regard to the Roman Catholic inmates, a Priest visits the hospital during the day, and attends at any other time when requested to do so. The inmates are allowed to attend their services outside the workhouse on Sundays.

* 619, Corwen.—No workhouse Chaplain employed. Religion administered gratuitously.

† 621, Bolgelly.—No entries appear in the Chaplain's Report Book. The Rector or Curate did, in fact, attend on four or five occasions during the period comprised in this return. With regard to the inmates of "all other denominations," the minister assisted voluntarily and gratuitously in terms of four weeks each.
